

EXTRA OFFICER JOINS PROBE OF CULP SHOOTING

Officer in Satisfactory Condition; Check Other Thefts

State and local police continued today their probe of the shooting and beating of Borough Officer Charles W. Culp, Jr., by two thugs early Friday morning. Warner hospital authorities reported the injured police officer spent a good night and was in a satisfactory condition at the hospital today.

Corporal Henry W. Buckbee, of the Pennsylvania motor police, who was formerly in command of the Gettysburg substation, has been assigned from Harrisburg as special investigator for the shooting and series of robberies here and in Chambersburg and McConnellsburg on the same night.

With Corporal Buckbee and Private Ray E. Oberhelm, of the Gettysburg detail of the motor police, Chief of Police Glenn Guise made a trip to Hagerstown late Friday afternoon to check possible connections between the local crimes and robberies which have occurred there recently. Robberies at Waynesboro, Rouzerville, Chambersburg and McConnellsburg during recent days are being scanned by the authorities for possible help in solving the identity of the pair who shot and beat Officer Culp after robbing the Fleetwing service station and the Railway Express office on Carlisle street and gaining entrance to the Western Maryland railroad ticket office and the Majestic theatre.

Chief Guise said this morning he believes Officer Culp fired two shots before he was shot and beaten to helplessness and then disarmed. Stanley Paluskievich, night clerk at the Hotel Gettysburg, and Nelson Carter, night porter, both told the chief they heard three shots, although only two slugs—misshapen after striking the alley concrete and ricocheting off the hotel walls—were found in the alley after the battle.

The black automatic pistol left behind by one of the officer's assailants is being sent to Harrisburg for examination by ballistics experts. That type of weapon automatically ejects empty cartridges after firing so there is no positive means of telling at the present time whether that is the weapon that wounded the policeman, officers said. No used cartridges were found.

Special Officer Horace L. Bender, who was to have gone on duty next week for Officer Culp while the latter enjoyed a vacation, is serving on the force during Culp's convalescence.

Money "Siphoned" From Associated Gas System

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—An investigation begun in 1935 by the Pennsylvania public utility commission brought today a federal power commission finding that service companies controlled by Howard C. Hopson "siphoned" millions of dollars from the bankrupt Associated Gas and Electric system.

The complete record of the case, said Pennsylvania Commissioner Richard C. Beamish, will be returned to that state for "any further action as the commission may deem advisable."

Pennsylvania companies involved are the Metropolitan Edison, Reading; Pennsylvania Electric, Erie lighting, Clarion River Power, of Johnstown; Northern Pennsylvania Power, Towanda, and Solar Electric, Brookville.

Escaping Steam Causes Death of Maryland Man

Westminster, Md., Sept. 28 (AP)—One man was fatally injured and another severely scalded early today by steam escaping from a boiler at the Congoleum-Nairn plant at Cedarhurst.

Herschel Ford of Gamber died in University hospital, Baltimore, not long after the accident. Melvin Ritter, of Westminster, also was taken to the hospital. His burns were described as severe but his condition was satisfactory.

Plant officials said the boiler did not explode but the steam was suddenly released, engulfing both men.

The plant makes material for composition rugs.

SCOUTS FROM 76 TROOPS COMING HERE OCTOBER 5

Expect 1,000 to Take Part in Pilgrimage; to See Game

Final information has been issued by Boy Scout officials for the annual Gettysburg pilgrimage on Saturday, October 5, in which an estimated 1,000 Boy Scouts from 76 troops in the York-Adams area will participate.

The announcement states that either Governor Arthur H. James or Major Lynn G. Adams, commander of the Pennsylvania state motor police, will be the speaker at patriotic exercises the scouts will hold late in the morning in the National cemetery.

In the afternoon the scouts and their leaders will be the guests of Gettysburg college for the Bullets' first game of the season with Wooster college on Memorial field.

A special train has been chartered on the Western Maryland railroad to bring the York county scouts here. It will leave York at 8:30 a.m. Upon arrival here all scout troops will report to six division mobilization points in the vicinity of the Reading station on North Washington street. Jack Cessna, Gettysburg district commissioner, has been named leader of the sixth division which will include scouts of the eight Adams county troops.

Route of Parade
A parade will be formed in the first block of North Washington street in a specified order and will move at 10:30 o'clock along this route: East on Chambersburg street to Center square and south on Baltimore street to the National cemetery where the exercises will be held. All troops will have their American and troop flags for use in the parade with color guards at the head of each troop. Scouts will march in either complete uniform or in civilian clothes.

After the parade the scouts will be allowed a free period in which to eat the box lunches they will bring with them. Then at 1:30 o'clock they will assemble by divisions outside the college football field where identification badges will be distributed and the scouts will march into a reserved block of seats at 2 o'clock.

Attractive felt emblems will be available to scouts as a souvenir of the pilgrimage which will end with the return trip in the evening. The special train will leave at 5:45 o'clock.

Foster C. Group Injured in Aspers

Foster C. Group, aged about 55, farmer and fruit grower of near Idaville, was overcome and possibly burned when carbon disulphide he was hauling in his car exploded in a burst of flame as he drove through Aspers about 10:30 o'clock this morning.

The car was set afire but Mr. Group was able to get out of the machine before he collapsed.

The Aspers fire company was called out to put out the blaze in the car but the machine was reported to be considerably damaged before the flames were extinguished.

The injured man was taken to the office of Dr. B. C. Jones in Bendersville and then to the office of Dr. Raymond Oyster in Biglerville but neither physician and the Penn Tile company truck carrying Mr. Group headed for the Warner hospital. Mr. Group had not arrived there by noon.

The two quarts of chemical he was hauling was for use in treating wheat against moth infection.

Surrenders to Police; Wanted for Assault

Harvey Williams, aged about 30 years, wanted since September 19 for assaulting Mrs. Carl C. Ray, Straban township, with a socket wrench, gave himself up to Chief of Police Glenn Guise here this morning. An aggravated assault and battery warrant was served on Williams.

At noon Williams was being questioned at the motor police barracks here and later in the day he is expected to be arraigned before Justice of the Peace John H. Bashore where Private Ray E. Oberhelm of the motor police filed the assault charge on the day Mrs. Ray was injured.

At the time of the attack Williams was described as a "floater" who had come here from New York state and had been employed for several months at the Ray farm north of Hunterstown.

When Mrs. Ray, 30, was brought to the Warner hospital the morning of September 19 for treatment for severe lacerations of the scalp and loss of blood she told police she had been making a bed at her home when she was struck over the head by Williams who then fled in his automobile.

Williams is reported to have appeared at the Ray home Friday evening and then accompanied Mr. Ray to Gettysburg this morning to surrender to the police.

Maroon Gridders Upset Carlisle in Loop Tilt

Sensational Runs and Field Goal Give Foremen First Victory

A pair of dazzling runs by Eddie Shoop and Ross Sachs in the first and second quarters respectively and a beautiful placement by "Pooney" Carter in the final period gave Gettysburg high school's gallant football team a 16-0 upset victory over Carlisle high here Friday night in a conference game before a crowd of about 1,800 fans.

In recording their first victory of the season the Maroons failed to gain a single first down while their opponents rolled up nine. However, practically all of Carlisle's ground-gaining was confined to midfield.

Midway in the first period Carter recovered a Carlisle fumble in midfield to pave the way for Gettysburg's first tally.

On the first play Shoop cut through left tackle, streaked for the south side of the field to outdistance several would-be tacklers and raced 50 yards for the score. A bad pass from center forced Bowling to run with the ball instead of try a placement kick and he was unsuccessful.

Visitors Threaten
Carlisle made its only real bid for a score early in the second period when Geesner whipped a 33-yard pass to W. Byers on Gettysburg's 12-yard line. However, a Carlisle player was detected clipping which put the ball back on the 25. Two plays later Bob Knox intercepted a pass on the 22.

Plank, Gettysburg.

3 POWERS AGREE ON "AREA" FOR SOVIET CONTROL

Military Pact May Be Extended to Include Bulgaria

Berlin, Sept. 28 (AP)—The three signatories to the German-Italian-Japanese military pact have agreed on the area in which the Red Star of Soviet Russia is to be the controlling symbol, the authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, said today.

The three powers, which have agreed already to the precise "spaces" in Europe, Africa and Asia in which they are to have the final word, have agreed on Russia's sphere so "that there can be no question of encroachment in foreign spaces by these powers," the commentary said.

The commentary defined the relation of the individual states to their respective "spaces" as "leadership" and not as monopolistic rule. Other German conjecture in the wake of Friday's dramatic signing of the new world-front alliance centered on the United States and its possible future use of Britain's Singapore base and its supply of arms and planes to the English.

Pressure on Greece, Turkey

Extension of the new German-Italian-Japanese pact to include Bulgaria and thus bring stronger psychological pressure on Greece and Turkey, who lean towards Britain, was suggested today by Italian political circles.

Bulgaria traditionally has been amenable to the Pan-Slav ideas of Russia, whose own position in the new setup is still publicly undefined.

One of the aims of Germany and Italy in the prosecution of the war has been to keep peace in the Balkans, sources of food and battle supplies for the axis.

The fighting in the battle of Britain took an upturn along with the diplomatic developments. German bombers wound up their third week of unrelenting air siege against the bomb-battered island with a thunderous overnight assault aimed primarily at London but which spread over uncounted other towns of England, Scotland and Wales.

The British, counting more than 130 Nazi planes shot down yesterday and last night alone, said the number of German planes lost over England in September was over 1,000 for the second successive month.

Divorce Suit Opened; Local Man Paroled

A divorce suit was opened in the Adams county courts this morning by attorneys for Mrs. Myrtle B. Fiske, Gettysburg R. 2, who is asking a decree of divorce from Charles M. Fiske, Bonneville, on grounds of indignities and cruel and barbarous treatment.

The court awarded a subpoena which is returnable on November 18.

Judge W. C. Sheely placed Norris Jacobs, Gettysburg, on parole for one year after Jacobs signed an agreement that $5 be deducted from his weekly wage to pay over $600 he owes on a previous court order on a support charge. On September 16 Jacobs was sent to jail on a 30-day sentence for contempt of court.

U.S. READY FOR ANY EVENTS IN ORIENT--WELLES

Undersecretary of State Suggests Use of Negotiations

Cleveland, Sept. 28 (AP)—Sumner Welles, undersecretary of State, declared in a new statement of foreign policy today that there was "no problem in the Far East" that could not be peacefully solved through negotiation, provided "all concerned" desired to find an equitable solution. He added, however, that the United States was preparing "for any eventualities."

In the most detailed analysis of foreign policy in many months by an authorized government spokesman, Welles set forth the "requirements of the United States" in the Orient. The declaration was considered especially significant since it followed Friday's announcement that Japan had joined Germany and Italy in a formal military alliance.

Welles also re-asserted American intentions "to render all material support and assistance" in the form of supplies and munitions to Great Britain and the British dominions "in what we hope will be their successful defense against armed aggression."

The speech was prepared for delivery before the foreign affairs council here.

The undersecretary reviewed foreign policy throughout the Roosevelt administration and warned that the United States faced a danger as grave as any in its history.

Far East Interests

Japan's assault on French Indo-China he condemned as a threat to "the integrity of the French colony" contrary to promises of the Japanese government to respect the status quo in that area.

"In essence," Welles declared "the primary requirements of the United States in the Far East may be thus simply set forth:

"Complete respect by all powers for the legitimate rights of the United States and of its nationals as stipulated by existing treaties or as provided by the generally accepted tenets of international law.

"Equality of opportunity for the trade of all nations.

"And finally, respect for those international agreements or treaties concerning the Far East to which the United States is a party, although with the expressed understanding that the United States is always willing to consider the peaceful negotiation of such modifications or changes in these agreements or treaties as may in the judgement of the signatories be considered necessary in the light of changed conditions."

The Japanese government, however, he continued, "has declared that it intends to create a 'new order in Asia.'"

Incidents Occurred

"In this endeavor," the undersecretary said, "it has relied upon the instrumentality of armed force, and it has made it very clear that it intends that it alone shall decide to what extent the historic interests of the United States and the treaty rights of American citizens in the Far East are to be observed."

He declared that "many hundreds of incidents have occurred" in which American rights had been violated. But he said "there is no problem presented which could not be peacefully solved through negotiation provided there existed a sincere desire on the part of all concerned to find an equitable and a fair solution which would give just recognition to the rights and to the real needs of all concerned."

Turning to Europe, Welles praised the heroism of the British people in "defending successfully their homes and their liberties" and added:

"It is the policy of your government, as approved by the congress of the United States, and I believe, by the overwhelming majority of the American people, to render all material support and assistance through the furnishing of supplies and munitions, to the British government and to the governments of the British dominions in what we hope will be their successful defense against armed aggression."

Upholds Intervention

Welles upheld President Roosevelt's intervention in the Czechoslovakian crisis of 1937 which has been criticized by Wendell Wilkie, the republican presidential nominee.

Undersecretary of State Suggests Use of Negotiations

which Willie has accused President Roosevelt of "torpedoing" Welles said:

"Early in 1933 the depression and unemployment prevalent in most countries, including our own, was so severe as to require far-reaching measures for relief and recovery in each country.

"This made it impossible, tragically enough, for the governments that met in London in 1933 to agree upon international measures that would serve satisfactorily the pressing needs of all," Welles said, "but the United States during the succeeding years assumed the leadership in trying to make effective the purpose which the 1933 conference had been summoned to achieve."

MacKenzie Says: No Place for Russia in 'New Order'

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

A potentially far-reaching feature of the pact which brings Germany, Italy and Japan into the new triple alliance is an omission — and one that may bring grey hairs to the heads of the three musketeers.

The trio has coolly partitioned Europe and Asia into three zones of influence — one for each of them. In this grandiose scheme no place is assigned to Russia.

The Soviet in area is the greatest country in the world. It stretches across both the continents involved in the triple alliance, occupying the eastern half of Europe and the northern part of Asia.

True, Nazi Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop in signing the pact invited "any state" to cooperate in establishing the new order projected by the alliance. True, too, both Berlin and Tokyo have made gestures which ostensibly mean a desire to be friendly.

However, all these would seem to me to boil down to one thing — that the Muscovites are invited to contribute to the greatness of the triple alliance but are not given a place in it.

Russian sources in London viewed the Soviet's position as "dangerous and very grave" but thought the position hinged on whether Germany had notified Moscow in advance about the project. German commentators say Russia was informed. Soviet Chief Stalin maintained his usual silence.

However, it is my view that Stalin will consider this the supreme affront and that the circumstances surrounding this extraordinary pact will only serve to hasten the inevitable clash between Germany and Russia — and between Russia and Japan as well.

Homecoming at Bender's Church

After a number of families of Evangelical Reformers and Lutherans had for a long time worshipped jointly in the English Episcopal church they erected a log church during the summer of 1781 on a portion of the "Plumb Grove Plantation," then "Mannallen Township, York County" now Butler township, Adams county, donated by Jacob and Catharine Bender. This began "Frieden's," generally known as "Bender's Church."

In the early days, when services were held at long intervals by circuit riding pastors, folks went to preaching in wagons bringing basket lunches and remaining all day. Houck ran 10 yards for the upper countains third touchdown in the second period while in the third quarter Horick went off-tackle for a short gain and a score.

In the last period Horick got away on a 93-yard run only to be caught from the rear. However, a play later Smallwood heaved a pass to Houck which was good for the score.

Major Games on Grid Card Today

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—In line with the growing tendency toward taking a flyer at national football fame before trying to win sectional and conference laurels, a few dozen of the nation's leading football teams engage in major intersectional clashes.

Its a stunt that's been growing more popular since the old idea of starting off with a couple of push-overs fell from favor. And as a result this early-season Saturday offers a program worthy of the hottest part of the campaign.

In three of the most important battles Michigan engages California at Berkeley; Minnesota plays Washington at Minneapolis, and the Ohio State powerhouse takes on Pitt.

Another intersectional clash of major importance sends Boston college against Tulane at New Orleans. Lesser east-south clashes are Virginia-Lehigh, Marshall-Virginia Tech and Navy-William and Mary. Georgetown plays Roanoke and Colgate meets Akron in a couple of "warmups."

Friday's games went pretty much according to form from Temple's 64-7 rout of Muhlenberg and Syracuse's 33-0 victory over Clarkson right out of Denver's hard-won 14-7 decision over Iowa State. In other important contests Detroit whipped Wayne 42-7, Kentucky downed Xavier 13-0, Drake rolled up a surprisingly big 56-0 score against Montana State, Alabama beat Spring Hill 26-0, Auburn defeated Howard 27-13, Georgia routed Oglethorpe 53-0 and Furman beat Erskine 40-0. Southern Methodist rallied in the last period to defeat U.C.L.A. 9-6.

Fairfield Booters Trip East Berlin

Fairfield high school's soccer team, defeated East Berlin at Fairfield Friday afternoon, 3-0.

After a scoreless first half which was evenly played, Fairfield tallied a pair of goals in the third period and added another in the final quarter to clinch victory.

Next Friday New Oxford will play at Fairfield.

Sports Roundup

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
New York, Sept. 28—Broadway buzzings: Did Bill Terry fine every member of the Giant except Ott and Hubbell the night before the Giants went out and won that double header? . . . Add those who think Tulane is loaded for bear this year: Doc Sutherland. . . . Whether you like it, or not, Max Baer is very much back in the heavyweight picture and will fight Louis again the minute somebody puts up $50,000 in the bank for him. . . . Mike Jacobs said he believed he would settle for Baer vs. Billy Conn.

G. and S. Department—If the Indians went through with their reported plan not to cut Manager Oscar Vitt in on a world's series (or second place) share, Herb Simons reports the Tribe may go around humming the Gilbert and Sullivan ditty:

Our object all sublime
We shall achieve in time
And make the punishment fit the crime—
The punishment fit the crime.

Today's Football Winners—Washington over Minnesota. William and Mary over Navy. Mississippi over La. State. Tulane over Boston College. Wake Forest over N. Carolina. Michigan over California.

Says line coach Mike Brumelow of Texas Christian: "I don't know about the first team, but we'll have the best second team we've ever had here." . . . At the fight the other night, one disgusted fan yelled, "Sock him now, Whoozis, you've got the wind with you." . . . Ray Mack, sensational key-stone star of the Indians, has a brother playing football at Kent college. . . . The World's series broadcasting will be done by Red Barber, of the Dodgers, Bob Elson, of Chicago and Mel Allen who did such a good job with the Yanks and Giants this year. . . . You'd mighty near call that an all-America, wouldn't you?

Today's guest star—Tom Sweeney, Worcester (Mass.) Evening Gazette: "The F.B.I. gets our approval to find out who eight thousand otherwise normal Americans turned out in Philadelphia to see the Athletics play a double-header against the Senators. . . . Never had any idea a struggle for the cellar crown could prove so interesting."

Just don't look right—We almost fell off our chair when we read these headlines in papers from the air-minded southwest conference belt: "Arkansas Lacks Passer"; "T. C. U. Takes to Ground"; "Aggies Look Bad on Passes"; "Baylor Ground Game Sparkles"; "Texas Passing Weak."

GUARD OFFICER DIES
Allentown, Pa., Sept. 28 (AP)—A heart ailment took the life of Major Russell Hahn, 54, of Easton, according to word telephoned here from Virginia Beach, Va., where he was training with the 23th coast artillery. The commander of the unit's first battalion had been active in the Pennsylvania National Guard for 30 years and was recently promoted from a captaincy.

Sensational Runs and Field Goal Give For- ney-men First Vic- tory

the Maroons' 39 but the rally faded when Thompson recovered a fumble on the same spot.

Line plunges by Weigle and a pass, Geesner to Holmes, put the ball on the locals' 28-yard line in the late minutes of the period but Coach Forney's lads put up a gallant stand and took the ball on downs on the 20-yard stripe.

In the last minutes of play in the period the prettiest play of the game was pulled.

Sachs Thrills
Geesner began heaving passes, one of which Ross Sachs grabbed in mid-field. Sachs was running toward his own goal line at the time and ran back about five yards before cutting back to head for touchdown territory.

Displaying one of the most sensational broken field runs seen on the local gridiron in many seasons, the swivel-hipped youngster weaved in and out of the Carlisle players like a frightened deer, struck for the south side of the field while shaking off several tacklers and scampered 55 yards for a touchdown.

Bowling dropped back for a placement kick and this time he put the ball squarely between the uprights for the extra point.

The third period was mostly a punting duel between Sachs and Kerns. Several times Carlisle seemed about to launch touchdown drives but the stalwart Maroon line, led by Bob Thompson who played a great defensive game, rose up to stifle the attack.

In the fading minutes of the third period Carter intercepted one of Geesner's passes on the visitor's 40-yard line. Just as he was about to be tackled he lateraled to Shoop who was forced out of bounds on the 20-yard line.

After the start of the fourth period two straight Maroon passes were grounded.

Carter Kicks Goal
At this stage Quarterback Staley elected to attempt a placement kick with Carter doing the booting. A pretty pass from center was held on the 25-yard mark by Staley and Carter sent a long kick through the uprights to add three more points to the Maroon total. The kick was at a slight angle but sailed through the goal posts with the accuracy of a gun-shot.

In the final period the Maroons elected to play a strictly defensive game and kicked time and again on first downs.

Using a mixing running and passing attack Coach Eby's outfit chalked up three more first downs in the last period but all of the gaining was done in midfield with no threat offered to the Maroon goal line.

Once again the entire Maroon team put up a great game against a much heavier and experienced aggregation. Carlisle was a favorite to win the tussle but the Maroons refused to be counted out and won by a determined bit of play.

All Play Well
Carter, Bowling and Thompson played outstanding games on the line with Thompson's defensive work topping the performances. Thomas, Fleck, Fissel, Faber, Ray and Strausbaugh turned in some neat work also on both offense and defense.

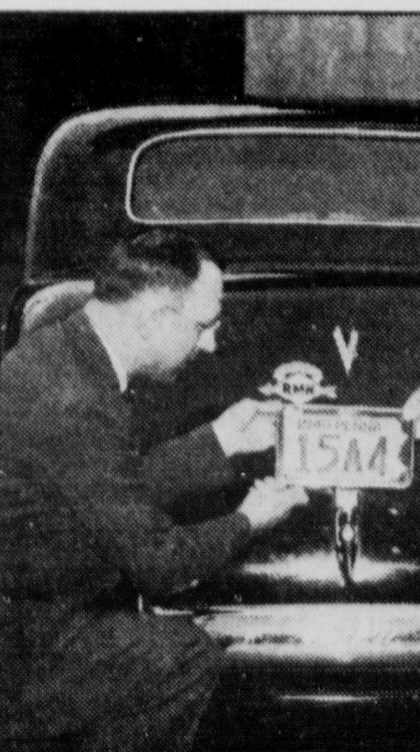

The two brilliant runs for scores by Shoop and Sachs stole the honors by the backs but R. Knox and Staley played steller games on the defense.

Geesner, Weigle and W. Byers played well for Carlisle.

Late in the second period, Updegrave, Carlisle freshman back, sustained a compound fracture of his left leg when tackled.

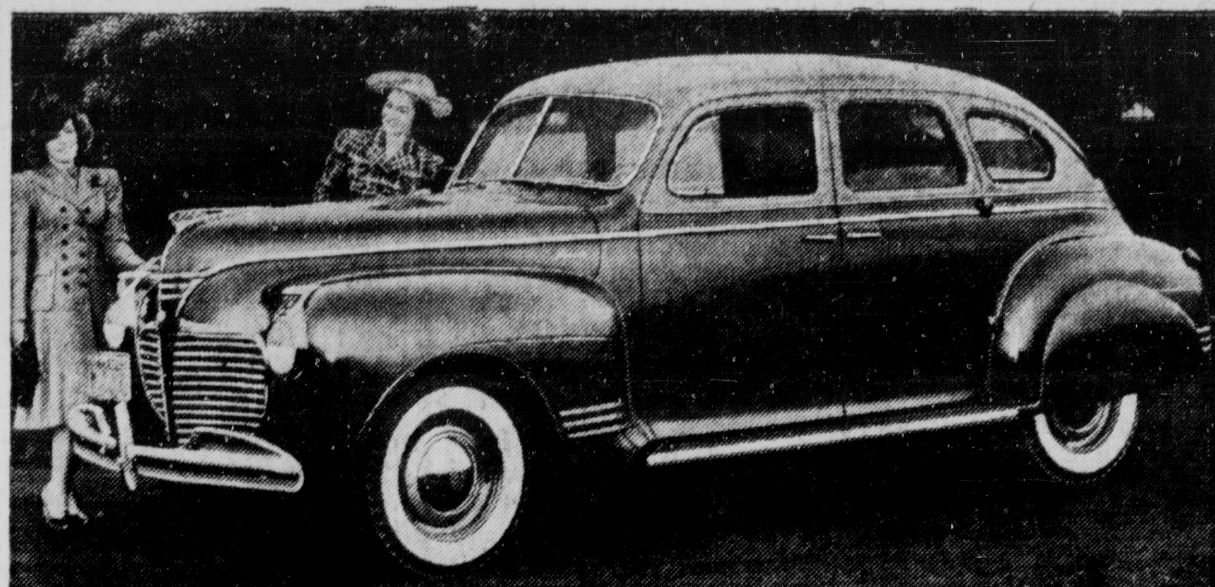

Coach "Rip" Engle of Waynesboro high was noted in the stands making notes on the play of both teams.

President Hoffman was the first of thousands of motorists to identify their cars with these colorful, new embossed metal emblems.

PLYMOUTH FOR 1941

Here's the new Plymouth for 1941—a "glamour car" from stem to stern, with numerous engineering advancements that contribute to new performance, impressive new luxury and driving ease. The car's nimbleness in traffic is achieved by new "high-torque" engine performance, stepped up in power and torque. Driving effort is greatly reduced by new Powermatic shifting and a new "get-away" gear in second speed that cuts down driving motions. "Fashion-tone" Interior is Plymouth's "inside" story for '41, bringing new luxury and charm beyond anything formerly expected in a low price motor car. Smart new 2-tone body colors are available on Special Deluxe sedans. Number One safety contribution this year is a new "Safety Rim" wheel design that reduces hazard of blowout or puncture by holding a flat tire securely on the rim. Even at high speeds, completely flat tire gives the driving effect of 10 lbs. pressure on standard type wheels. This is the 1941 Plymouth Special Deluxe Four-door Sedan.

His outfit will meet both teams later in the season.

Bands of both schools helped to keep the chilled spectators entertained with drills at half time.

Local Dodge Dealer Previews '41 Models

With enthusiastic prophesies that motorists will be surprised and delighted with the styling, mechanical innovations and other features of the new cars and trucks for 1941, J. A. Phiel, local Dodge dealer, returned today from a meeting of Dodge dealers and their sales personnel at Baltimore.

At this gathering, sales officials from Dodge headquarters at Detroit presented a review of activities during the model year just closing and detailed plans for merchandising activities in connection with the soon-to-be-announced Dodge lines of 1941 passenger cars, "Job-Rated" trucks and commercial cars.

"I was greatly impressed," said Mr. Phiel, "by reports given at the meeting relating to the large volume of orders for 1941 Dodge cars and trucks that are being placed not only by dealers but by consumers who have still to see what these new products are like."

Cleveland and Yanks Lose Chance for Flag

BY BILL WHITE
Associated Press Sports Writer
A couple of righthand pitchers made it "next year" for seven American league clubs today.

All the dreams and the hopes of winning the junior circuit title that keep flickering until somebody actually nails the pennant to the flag pole faded out Friday for everybody but the courageous Detroit Tigers.

Floyd Gleibel, the West Virginia rookie, who bested Bobby Feller in a pitching duel that gave the Tigers a 2-0 decision and the championship, is one of the righthanders. The other is Johnny Babich, of the Philadelphia Athletics who racked up his fifth win of the year over the four-time world champion New York Yankees, by 6-2.

Hitler Tells Plan in Court: Lelaps, Germany, Sept. 26 (AP) — Adolf Hitler, chieftain of Fascism in Germany, took advantage of a ready made platform in the Lelaps supreme court Thursday to tell Germans and the world how he would set up a German "Third Empire."

The plan he sketched while a witness in the trial of three German Reichswehr officers on charges of subversive activities involved tearing up the Versailles treaty, with such consequences as might follow that action, and intimation that blood would flow at home once his "revolutionary tribunals" were working.

With all of the conviction and confidence of a man who stakes his all on a cause, he asserted that thirty-five or forty million German voters soon would rally under the Fascist banner.

GOOD-BY

THERE is always a strain of sadness, and a note of regret in all Good-bys. A Good-by to a beloved spot—or a friend. But no bitterness should ever be allowed, nor unkind words, nor unhappy reminders, to cloud the personal Good-by. There are too many last Good-bys concealed from us.

I like the Hawaiian "Aloha" for it has a double meaning—a happy Welcome, and a happy Good-by. Perhaps I may say that it has a third meaning, for the Good-by Aloha is given with the feeling that it also means that you will return to Hawaii. How fine if we could make our simple Good-by also mean just that! Then it would always be a happy one.

The Good-by always carries with it—memories, but the happy ones alone should be treasured. There is no room in our memory room for anything else. A hurt always leaves a scar—and scars are not pleasant to carry around.

I said Good-by gladly to Weskawenaak, my Summer island home in Nova Scotia—because it brought increased health to me. It stimulated my imagination and my love for all creations in Nature. It helped me to find my self anew. We are always discovering things about ourselves—and I did as I walked those mossy paths and stood and watched the evening Sun lower in colorful wings into the fading Western sky. It was both a happy and a sad Good-by—but said with the hope that again I would return.

The glad Good-by to a friend, however, is pregnant with a world of meanings. With regrets that the Good-by could not have been laden with more unselfish service, rendered while yet there was time, and with the hope that it might carry many an unexpressed message to the heart, when most needed in the yet to be.

Good-bys are like good seeds, scattered in strange, and foreign fields, there to take nourishment, and later to bloom and spread their fragrance to the Four Winds. And so Good-by—until tomorrow!

THE PEEKER

I write this for golfers — a wail of despair —
A song of a burden we all have to bear
And that heartache which comes to the victor seeker
When he sadly discovers his partner's a peeker.

In partnership matches — those four-ball affairs —
The partners are friendly as Yellowstone bears,
But one of them slowly but surely grows meeker
When it dawns upon him that his partner's a peeker.

Now there's nothing that's worse on the fairways we tread
Than a partner persistently lifting his head
And there's never a cry from the stronger or weaker
So filled with frustration as: "I've drawn a peeker!"

I know what it means with such chaps to be paired
And that feeling of helplessness utter I've shared.
So now to that rare golfing bird, here's a beaker:
The other man's partner who's never a peeker.

The Literary Guidepost

Some new non-fiction, more or less useful —

FROM the first chapter, wherein Ray Kauffman takes the plans for his round-the-world ketch to Mr. Krebs of Krebsville, and Mr. Krebs refuses to read them, you have a pretty good idea that "Hurricane's Wake" will prove an amusing and slightly unconventional cruise book. It is that, with the additional advantage that the route chosen by the author and Gerry, his mate, was a little unusual. It included the South Seas, of course, but also Australia, Batavia, the east African coast and the Cape of Good Hope. The adventures are above par, the writing is easy, and the illustrations, what there are of them, excellent. (Macmillan; $3.)

Joseph Gairdner's "Yankee Skipper" will fit into the average reader's experience at the point where his ship, the "City of Flint," rescued 250 from the "Athenia" last September. But his career began dangerously in the war of 1914-15, and has included a good deal of adventure in the intervening two decades. The book is his autobiography, much more interesting than most of its kind. (Stokes; $3.)

Try though we may, we can find very little use for the memoirs of the late E. Berry Wall, who until recently was one of the ornaments of Paris and the French Riviera. They are things to be learned from "Neither Pest Nor Puritan" about the social structure of the last half century, but they have been more engagingly presented in other books. And Wall was a typical male butterfly even to the fancy plumage — or whatever the butterfly wears to make it look so gay. (Dial; $3.50.)

The long series of profiles in which St. Clair McKelway took Walter Winchell apart for the benefit of New Yorker readers has been made into a book called "Gossip: the Life and Times of Walter Winchell." You do not have to agree with McKelway's blistering conclusions to appreciate the fact that he has done a remarkable job of assembling and assuring information — or to understand the terror which the name of Winchell inspires in certain quarters. (Viking; $1.75.)

Speaking of terror brings up a curious book called "Spy and Counterspy" by its authors, Emanuel Victor Voska and Will Irwin. It shows how the Czechs in America were made into a counter-espionage group which had much to do with reducing German sabotage in America, and in exposing both German spies and the plots they were engineering. The Road to Snani Lun

By RITA MOHLER HANSON

YESTERDAY: Lynn Britton and Dick, her half-brother, have entered a forbidden temple in Mongolia so that Lynn may have a look at the man who tomorrow will escort her on a mysterious journey to visit a Mongol prince. Dick is ill at ease, and Lynn, her lovely figure disguised in men's clothes, has caught some of his fear.

Chapter Two

THE GODDESS TARA

Dick laughed. "You didn't care much for Sam Telford."

"Sam made a dreadful fuss about my coming—threatened to follow me, to take up that old—that old bank scandal about you. He felt I shouldn't trust you because of it. But Dick," she put an affectionate hand on his, observing how old and thin and ill he looked, "to my little-girl memory you were a hero, somehow betrayed. You were so handsome, so kind, and so generous to me."

His thin grey lips twitched. "Then you don't think I'm such a bad fellow after all?"

"Life has been unkind to you. It would have been better to come home and take your medicine."

He drew back and spoke brusquely. "That's not my way."

Something moved in a corner of the building. Dick drew his electric torch. The pilgrim was squatting on the stone-paved floor, his head hidden in his arms. Dick strode over and kicked him. The man merely cringed.

Seizing the dirty collar of his dull red coat, Dick drew the fellow to his feet, but he continued to hide his face like a frightened child. The white man laughed and shoved him back into his corner.

"Native jackal!" he said contemptuously.

"He's been watching and following us ever since we entered the gate," Lynn told her brother. "Perhaps you know him and he doesn't want you to see his face."

Dick gave the fellow a final kick. "He's just a cowardly, begging pilgrim. I know the breed. It's the lamas you must be careful of. The pilgrims expect to be kicked around. Let's go. We should enter the temple before the monks gather for Sherdock's ceremonial visit."

Lynn followed him with an uneasy backward glance.

They crossed the terrace to another stairway leading up to the courtyard before the golden temple, with its yellow-tiled roof, the belled corners curving upward in rhythmic billowing grace.

Climbing the marble runway they crossed the portico, pushed open the door, and stepped inside the building. In the flicker of a thousand butter lamps, Lynn stopped and stared.

They revealed the images along the walls, a mammoth golden Buddha — a hideous devil-god — rows of minor deities and loahans, disciples of the Buddha. With a feeling of awe she stepped forward and put her hand on one of the smooth red lacquer columns that disappeared into lofty voids of darkness above a cloud of painted silken banners. The devil-god inspired her with something of her childhood terror at a ferociously ugly face.

Dick finished circling the room with his electric torch. There were no hidden worshippers. Motioning Lynn to follow him to a ledge in the shadows between two grimacing loahans, he tried a narrow door behind them, and found that it could be opened.

"A handy exit," he explained, sitting down beside her. "We may need it. Some of these people know things without being told. If—" he broke off. "I was a fool to bring you."

"I'll still myself to nothingness," Lynn promised.

Strange currents of air, laden with heavy incense and sharp fumes from the butter lamps, coiled about through the temple. A soft rustling began among the banners. Lynn looked up.

"Spirits?" she asked though she was trembling a little.

Reincarnation?

Dick's mouth set in a grim line. "You can expect anything in a place like this. But you would come." He turned his torch on a statue they had not observed before. It sat above an altar on the opposite side of the room. A life-sized green goddess, her face slender and pointed, her eyes long and full, her eyebrows gracefully curved.

She bent dreamingly over the altar, the right hand on her knee, palm up, the left raised to the level of her breast, long tapering fingers held in the attitude of exposition. She wore the pointed crown.

"How beautiful!" Lynn gasped.

"Why, Dick, it's an Aryan face,"

"The Nepalese goddess, Tara," murmured Dick. Lynn sensed surprise and wonder in his voice. He turned and gave his sister a sharp, prolonged scrutiny. She was studying the statue.

"Lynn," he asked with suppressed excitement, "does she remind you of someone you know?"

"Someone I know?" she repeated.

"Think," he urged, "that chin, that nose, those long, full eyes." He finished impatiently. "What do you see when you look in the mirror?"

"Why, Dick!" Lynn stared speechlessly. Her hands went to her throat. "You're right!" she whispered presently. "In my better moments I do resemble her. What an amazing coincidence!"

"I'll say!" agreed her brother. "But the strange part is this. Sherdock Fuyeh declares that you are a reincarnation of the goddess, the Tara."

Lynn gave him a swift look. "Do you believe that sort of thing, Dick?"

He shook his head. "Still," he admitted, "it got me for a moment. Well—we can make good use of the resemblance."

"What do you mean by such a strange statement?" she demanded.

Before he could answer they heard the shuffle of approaching feet. "Here the lamas come," he whispered nervously. "For God's sake keep yourself inconspicuous!"

Lynn found herself sharing his agitation. Furtively she watched the student monks and their elders enter in dingy red or yellow togas and take the rows of long benches filling the center of the temple room. A few gaunt pilgrims crept in and crouched along the wall.

Then came a procession carrying big red lanterns, bundles of incense sticks and ritual poles hung with streamers of red and blue and yellow inscribed with mystic characters.

"Here's Sherdock, now," whispered Dick, as two lamas bearing lighted torches preceded the visiting "incarnation."

Sherdock Fuyeh was a small man clad in shining saffron robes, a high yellow mitre on his head and velvet Chinese boots on his feet. His wise, leathery old face with its grey chin-whiskers seemed as calm and peaceful as that of the Buddha. His serenity was so palpable that Lynn felt the contagion of it.

Certainly nothing but good could come from being in the presence of such a man, she thought, with a comforting sense of relief. He discounted the scores of new and unformed souls about him.

A throne-like chair was brought forward for him. His military escort, a half-dozen tall, handsomely uniformed men, wearing Sam Browne belts and cavalry boots, lined up under the image of the green Tara.

The torches lit up their smooth Mongolian faces and made Lynn extremely conscious of how much they resembled American Indians; how different they were from the small, yellow Chinese she had been accustomed to see in California. The leader moved slightly and Lynn secured a better look at his face.

"Dick," she whispered excitedly under cover of the chatter that filled the room, "I'll wager there's white blood in that man—that Mongolian officer."

"Very likely," he agreed without glancing up. "White travelers occasionally pass through the country."

Lynn shrugged and continued to watch the young officer. He had an appearance of lineage; an air of the unconquerable, the unpredictable about him. To her eyes he seemed far superior in carriage and pride and alertness to the rest of the soldiers. Even the scar on his left cheek, shaped like a horseshoe and very noticeable, was not, somehow, unpleasant.

Lamentation

A golden bell-note stilled the chattering. Small drums struck up a special rhythm with all the gusto of a devil dance. Then deep-toned trumpets rumbled and were silent; wind instruments like oboes sang a musical phrase simple yet moving. It was repeated with variations supported by the thunder-roll of kettle drums. Lynn felt in the music a strange, acute impression of lamentation.

Slowly a chant arose, low and melancholy at first, then deep-throated as thunder in the mountains—solemn sentences of mystic import meant to raise the mind above captivating illusions. The chanting faded away; a rapid gesture symbolizing the void fluttered among the assemblage.

Lynn had unconsciously raised her face until the light shone full upon it. She heard a swift intake of breath at her side. Dick was staring at the native officer.

"Temu Darin!" he gasped.

But the soldier was not looking at Dick; his piercing amber eyes had struck fire from Lynn, his calm incredulity changing to the shock of intimate recognition as if she were known to him. Then swiftly, his expression took on a flare of angry comprehension, for he had seen Dick.

A ragged pilgrim screamed, pointing a bony finger in Lynn's direction. It was the evil-looking Mongol of the missing ear. He shouted a native phrase that was thrown back and forth among the crowd. Excitement caught like panic in a herd of milling cattle. Demoniac tumult broke loose.

Dick struggled frantically to open the door behind them and succeeded just as the tall officer, knocking men right and left, reached their side. Strange words passed between him and Dick.

The door slammed and Lynn and her brother were on the outside and running. At the gate the lama guard recognized them, accepted more silver from Dick and rushed them up the narrow stairs into the gate-house above.

"Safer than crossing the field to the village just now," Dick panted. But the monks searching for them did not follow. Lynn watched from the upper window. The noisy crowd was spilling from the temple and hanging close together before the portico. The saffron-robed Sherdock Fuyeh stepped forth in the moonlight, lifted his hands, and spoke a few words, at which the lamas scattered to their dormitories at the rear of the park.

COMMUNICATION

Gettysburg, Pa.

September 27, 1940.

The Editor,

The Gettysburg Times

Dear Sir:

After reading the communications of September 23 and September 27 in your paper, I feel that the other side of the question should be presented.

We all agree, I believe, that rowdiness and gangsterism should be eliminated. But, is a little enthusiastic celebration of a football victory to be termed "gangsterism"? Has not the attendance at the first two night games indicated what the majority of the people think of night football? It is unreasonable to expect that in a town of six thousand inhabitants, possessing a high school and a college whose combined enrollment is over one-sixth of the town's population, there should never be any noise at night. We should be glad that the celebration is confined to noise-making.

This amount of noise is a petty grievance compared to the suffering existing in other parts of the world. Maybe our "noise complainers" would prefer to live in England or Germany at the present time; but, for my part, I'll take football celebrations in the U.S.A. in preference to bombs in Europe.

If night football has any effect on our tourist trade, it will probably bring people here rather than drive them away—tourists like sports too, you know.

Permit me to compliment "A Reader" on his excellent solution for this problem: Any one who finds a town of this size too noisy should move to the country or to some dead town that has no night life and no young people.

Sincerely yours,

JACK CESSNA.

MEN FOR INDUSTRY

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP) — Draft officials said today that local selective service boards may undertake to place in defense industries rather than in the Army skilled unemployed men who register for military service. While emphasizing that no formal instructions to that effect have been decided upon, they said every effort would be made to keep in view the needs of essential industries when men are called for their year of training.

Backgrounds of Adams County

By B. F. MACPHERSON

No. 158 — Private Peter Crabs (1745—1841)

LAST week, due to a typographical error, the number and title of the column for the week before (September 14, 1940—No. 156) was used. The heading for last week should have read "No. 157—The Shriver Family." We make this correction in order that our readers may not become confused.

A comparatively short time ago we wrote two columns on the Peter Klein (Little) family. One of our Maryland readers, a descendant of the said Peter Little, has requested us to correct a mistake which appeared in that sketch. We had stated that Barbara, the daughter of Peter and Ursula (Shriver) Little, married Matthew Galt. Instead it was Mary, daughter of the same Peter and Ursula Little, who married Matthew Galt. We were also told that Ursula (Shriver) Little was and is buried to the left of her husband, and that the original stone at her grave was of the same type as that marking her husband's grave.

OUR first soldier for today, whose grave is to be found in Christ Reformed cemetery, is a member of the Shriver family. The inscription from the stone marking his grave follows:

"Jacob Schreier
born August 9, 1752
died October 26, 1783
Aged 31 years"

This Jacob Schreier was probably a son of Andreu Schreier, 2nd, the first settler at Conewago, and his wife Anna Maria. We have no proof of this, but he is buried in the Andreu Schreier family plot, and his name is spelled identically the same. We regret that we have so little data to give you concerning this man.

During the war of the Revolution Jacob Schreier was a private in the company of Captain George Eichelberger of the First Battalion of the York County Militia under the date of "December 27th, 1775." (Pennsylvania Archives—6th Series—Volume 2—Page 240.)

On October 12, 1780, we find Jacob Schreier listed as a private in Captain Michael Hahn's Company of the First Battalion of York County Militia, commanded by Col. Miller. In this company he is described as "private—8th class." (Pennsylvania Archives—6th Series—Volume 2—Page 431).

THE next soldier of the Revolution on our list, whose grave is to be found in Christ Reformed cemetery, is one Peter Crabs. The inscriptions from the stones marking the grave of this man and his wife follows:

"Peter Crabs
died October 27, 1841
Aged 96 years."

"Anna Mary
Wife of Peter Crabs
died October 9, 1823
aged 62 years, 10 mo. 11 days."

Gettysburg Views in New Tourist Booklet
"Pennsylvania at Your Fingertips," a new booklet published by the Commerce department, has been developed to answer frequent questions of tourists as to what can be seen within a couple of hours of easy motoring distance from this or that section of Pennsylvania. Richard P. Brown, secretary, said today.

Four pictures and a map are devoted to Gettysburg in the new booklet.

Continuing, Secretary Brown said: "For the convenience of tourists, we have divided the state into sections surrounding the ten largest cities in Pennsylvania, and the sequence in the booklet is arranged in accordance with the population of the cities."

"Three hundred thousand of these booklets have been printed and it is proposed to send them out in answer to the many inquiries which we receive from tourists (it appears that more than 50,000 inquiries will be received during this year), and also for distribution at various points throughout the state."

"This booklet should be of help to the visitor within our gates who is interested in the answer to the question—What is there to be seen in different sections of Pennsylvania?"

SENATE OKAYS HAVANA TREATY FOR HEMISPHERE

Says Pan-Americans Are Ready for Aggression

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Senator Pittman (D-Nev.), citing ratification of the treaty of Havana as new proof of Pan-American solidarity, declared today that the western hemisphere nations are prepared to meet "any aggression" which might arise from the German-Italian alliance with Japan.

The senate ratified the treaty by voice vote Friday shortly after announcement in Berlin that Japan had lined up formally with the axis powers in an agreement which pledged the three nations to assist each other in the event any of them was attacked by a new enemy in the European or Chinese wars.

The Havana treaty provides specifically that the 21 American nations will act jointly against the transfer of sovereignty of European possessions in this hemisphere to other European powers. Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, declared:

"It minimizes the effect of the proclaimed solidarity of the eastern hemisphere, as expressed in the tripartite axis treaty. 'It furnishes concrete evidence that the countries of the western hemisphere are prepared to meet any aggression with a united front.'"

What aggression might conceivably result from the new axis alliance the senator did not say.

There were no indications, however, that the course of United States foreign policy would be altered in the slightest. On the contrary, Secretary Hull said Friday that the Berlin treaty was not unexpected, and that, in fact, such a development had been taken into account in determining this country's policies.

President Roosevelt, who refrained from comment on the pact, received Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, and Sir Walter Layton of the council of British ministry of supply. Upon leaving the White House, Lothian said that Britain's need is for "more of everything and quick."

The Havana treaty, designed primarily to meet the possibility that Germany might try to take over French.

I.O.O.F. Degree Given In Chambersburg

Approximately seventy-five persons gathered in the lodge rooms of Columbus lodge, No. 75, Chambersburg, Thursday evening, to witness and participate in the conferral of the first degree of Odd Fellowship.

The work followed the exemplification of the initiatory degree by the different lodges having candidates in the class of candidates, and was performed by the staff of Columbus lodge under the direction of Dr. R. T. Jones, noble grand, and W. H. Leidig, captain of the team, with L. E. Moorehouse serving as pianist.

The candidates represented the following lodges: Harrisburg, No. 68, five; Columbus, No. 75, Chambersburg, two; Gettysburg, No. 124, Gettysburg, one, and St. Thomas, No. 950, one. The candidates will receive the second degree in the local lodge rooms on Tuesday evening, and the third in the rooms of Harrisburg lodge, No. 68, Harrisburg, on Friday evening, October 4.

Much favorable comment was heard on the manner in which the work was conducted, credit being due the officers of the degree staff and the musician, who contributed largely to the military precision with which the floor work was executed.

Following the regular lodge session an open meeting was held, at which time remarks were given by many visitors. George B. Horn, of the Chambersburg lodge, in a reminiscent mood, gave excerpts from a Harrisburg paper of the date of 1870, in which mention was made of exchange of visits between the Chambersburg and Harrisburg lodges at that time. M. W. Stansbury, of Gettysburg lodge, gave a short resume of the relations which have existed between the Chambersburg and Gettysburg lodges for a period covering ninety years. The local fraternity was instituted in 1845, due to the efforts of Robert D. Amos, a member of the Chambersburg organization, who removed to Gettysburg.

Those from Gettysburg attending the meeting were Jacob Britcher, the candidate receiving the degree, and the following members: Charles K. Hartzell, Samuel G. Sollenberger, Jesse E. Snyder, Paul A. Snyder, Morris W. Stansbury, Lawrence M. Sheads, Ervin H. Menges, and David Deitch.

Due to the press of work, including installation of officers and degree work, the meeting of Gettysburg lodge will be held on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock instead of 7:30, the regular time.

The meeting of the Past Grand's association of Adams county will be held with Valley Home lodge, No. 740, Fairfield, on Thursday evening, and on Friday evening the candidates will assemble with Harrisburg lodge, No. 68, to receive the third and final degree of the order.

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—It's turn-back-the-clock time again. At 2 a.m. Sunday all persons who lost an hour of sleep last April with the advent of daylight saving time may recover it with the return of Standard Time. The brain-child of a Britisher, the system got its greatest impetus during the World War by putting people to bed and getting them up an hour earlier, on the theory that fuel for lighting would be saved thereby.

AMUSEMENTS: HERE AND THERE

NEXT WEEK AT THE MAJESTIC
Monday and Tuesday — "LUCKY PARTNERS"
Wednesday — "WALT DISNEY FESTIVAL"
Thursday — "RIVER'S END"
Friday and Saturday — "FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT"

"LUCKY PARTNERS." Screen-play by Allan Scott and John Van Druten. Directed by Lewis Milestone. Principals: Ginger Rogers, Ronald Colman, Spring Byington, Jack Carson, Harry Davenport and Hugh O'Connell.

Some folks said when this picture was started that Ginger wasn't the type for Colman, and vice versa, and that the combination would result in a celluloid mess.

The airy and amusing piece details consequences of the purchase of a sweepstakes ticket by Ginger and Colman, including (these screen writers think of everything, don't they?) a platonic honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls.

It is very obvious from the beginning that Colman, looking almost boyish with his hair cut short and wearing sweaters, will win this lady of somebody else's choice, even though she is wearing her hair black and in a cumbersome manner (I think) down her pretty neck in something that I am told is a snood.

You know very well that the dope she is engaged to marry doesn't have an outside chance after Colman turns on the personality, but the dope, in the person of Carson, stays in and pitches to complicate matters and thereby amuse you and me. A story so frothy as this has many ways to go astray, but Milestone kept it in the right key except for one deviation into the realm of whimsy. That realm is exclusively Disney's, because he alone does it well, and I wish others would stay out. I refer to that sequence where Ginger and Ronald meet up with Peter Possum.

THE Walt Disney festival comprises "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which hasn't been seen anywhere since its withdrawal from circulation last year; "Ferdinand the Bull"; the Three Little Pigs in "The Practical Pig"; "The Ugly Duckling," Academy Award winner for the best animated short feature for 1940; and "Donald's Lucky Day"—all RKO Radio releases.

Walt Disney has received so many requests from people all over the country asking for an opportunity to see "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" again that he decided to issue this show, known as the Great Walt Disney Festival, including the classic subjects. The five Disney hits are all in technicolor.

FOR scenes in "River's End," Warner Bros. thriller, Dennis Morgan, who stars in the film, was supposed to escape from his jailors—two stalwart Northwest Mounted Police—after hearing the death sentence pronounced over him.

After fighting his way through the courtroom mob he jumped from the window and made good his escape. Director Ray Enright had him do it three times; then, to film the jump from outside, had him do it three more.

The "police" rushed to the window and shot after him. One bit of dialogue that you won't hear when you see the picture (it was cut from the sound track) is Morgan's quip as the blanks exploded around him: "Don't shoot, officer; I'll go quietly."

"River's End" was adapted for the screen from the James Oliver Curwood novel.

Due to requests by patrons, the special feature usually held on Wednesday at the Majestic will be held on Thursday of each week in the future.

LIKE the horse and buggy, plain dignified black derby hats are passing from the American scene rapidly, too rapidly, in fact, to please the property and wardrobe men who worked on Walter Wanger's "Foreign Correspondent."

For the first scenes of this timely international adventure drama, the Wanger company had to make three black derbies for Joel McCrea, because none was available in Los Angeles or Hollywood, and 200 others needed for Amsterdam and London scenes had to be purchased from a New York auctioneer of bankrupt stocks and sent to the studios air
